

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An electronic-money settlement method and information processing apparatus use a portable information device and a management center. when an amount of electronic money deposited in the portable information device is insufficient for a payment amount, information on a loan made to the user of the portable information device up to a predetermined limit is recorded by the portable information device and the management center.